Dear Ronald Sherman,

I bring you Good News . . . about the 8th International Conference on Biotherapy, about the deadline for nominations (and self-nominations) for the BTER Foundation Biotherapy Awards, and about other forthcoming events and conferences of interest.

Read about them below, or check them out in our on-line Newsletter at: www.bterfoundation.org/tbl_index

. . . And don't forget to make your reservations for the 8th International Conference on Biotherapy: November 11-14, 2010.

2010 International Conference on Biotherapy

The 8th International Conference on Biotherapy is coming to America!

Mark your calendars, make your reservations:
Los Angeles, November 11-14, 2010.

This is the first time that the acclaimed Conference has been held in North America. The schedule includes 4 days of clinical and research developments in maggot therapy, leech therapy, helminthic therapy, phage therapy, hippotherapy, diagnostic canines and more. You can find additional information and registration materials at: www.bterfoundation.org/icb/icb2010.htm.

Want to submit a paper or poster? Hurry!- deadline is June 1, 2010.
Want to attend? Hurry!- before the reserved (discounted) rooms are all gone, or the early-bird registration period is over.

And while you are in town . . . stay for a few extra days at the Los Angeles / Universal City Hilton, in center of Sunshine and Southern California!

Biotherapy Awards - It's About Time

You still have 2 more weeks to submit nominations for the first William S. Baer Award for Outstanding Service in the Advancement of Biotherapy. The award was established in 2009; the first award will be presented at the 8th International Conference on Biotherapy in November. Nomination forms can be downloaded from the BTER Foundation website. The award includes a $1,000 honorarium and featured lecture opportunity at the Conference. Due to the unanticipated and overwhelming response, the deadline for nominations (including
